3. What are cookies?

We use cookies on our website. Cookies are small chunks of IT data – text files that are installed in the web browser of your computer or other mobile device when you visit our website. Usually, a cookie file consists of information about the website it comes from, a unique code, and information on how long the cookie is stored in the User's web browser.

Cookies do not in any way affect the devices on which they are stored. They do not change the settings or configurations of any software installed on these devices. They are completely safe for the User and the equipment used to browse the website

4. What is the purpose of cookies?

We need cookies to collect statistical data about the Users of our website. Although such data may in some circumstances be considered personal data, e.g. the IP address of the device you use, in general, we are talking about anonymous statistical data. We do not combine such data with any other information about you, but only use it to improve the quality and functionality of our website, ensure the safety of our website and its Users, e.g. to prevent phishing, customise the website's content to the needs and interests of its Users, provide social media features (e.g. Facebook plug-in), analyse our traffic and for statistical purposes.

5. What kind of cookies are there?

Cookies can be divided into different categories on the basis of how long they are stored in the browser of the User's device or based on their source of origin. We use the following cookies on our website:

- a) storage period:
- session cookies – cookies that are saved in your device's browser when you visit our website and are deleted when you close your browser,
 - persistent cookies – cookies that are saved in your device's browser when you visit our website and remain stored there for a while, even after you close your browser. Such cookies have a set period of time for which they can be stored and are automatically deleted after its expiry.
- b) source of origin:
- first-party cookies – cookies that belong to us and come from our website with the website name (domain) encoded in their structure,
 - third-party cookies – cookies that are installed in your browser via our website, but originate from external entities that we cooperate with or that provide us with IT services.
